

Strategic Thinking in the 21st Century:

A two-day professional development training

Many organizations overlook basic strategy execution principles daily. In fact, only 9% of companies are rated as excellent at execution, and only 11% of managers believe that all their company's strategic priorities have the financial and human resources needed for execution success. Gaps in the company's performance often trace back to leaders and key managers not thinking strategically. Here's how LBL Strategies will help your leaders think and act more strategically in just one day.

Empowering leaders to think, plan, and act strategically.

Learn more at www.lblstrategies.com.

“This course has really provided the framework and specific tools I can use immediately in my position and keep front and center to continuously think strategically and influence others to do so as well!”

Paula Ahearn, Principal Financial Analyst, Pico Energy

“The class provided me the skills and concepts to ‘raise my gaze’ by stopping and thinking strategically, and ensuring alignment through my entire team.”

Pat Mullens, Engineering Manager, Exelon Nuclear

“The tools and ‘10 questions’ are a great foundation for how to execute strategy. There was a great balance of knowledge sharing, discussion, and activities for getting people engaged and involved.”

Shuk Yin Chuk, Supervising Engineer, Pepco Holdings, Inc.

You’ll walk away from the course with:

- » An individually bound course discussion guide, including strategic thinking tools and exercises
- » Resource book: Thinking Strategically: Pocket Mentor, Collins, D., Boston: Harvard Business Press, 2010
- » A “Personal Value Proposition” statement
- » An individualized report, including “next step” suggestions, from Harvard Business Press strategic thinking self-assessment
- » Strategic Thinking questions, activities, exercises and tools to develop a culture of thinking and acting strategically

Addressing the Types of Leadership Issues

Do you often see strategy meetings veer off topic? Are your team members engaged and aligned with the organization’s strategic direction? Is budget dictating your strategy? Are there external opportunities and threats that are being ignored? We’ll cover each of these specific problems and more in this introduction to strategic thinking tools and exercises. All organizations face these issues, but not all organizations address them. The one-day course will provide you with the ability to understand how strategic thinking guides day-to-day operational work – and, in turn, leave you with tools, exercise, and 10 key questions to help you think and act strategically.

Addressing Strategic Leadership Questions

Implementing your strategic goals into all aspects of your business is a challenge. We’ll work through common questions regarding integrating strategy into the business and provide a clear path for how to best move forward.

Results

The goal of Strategic Thinking in the 21st Century is to encourage strategic thinking at all levels of your business by providing you with an understanding of the impact strategic thinking has on organizational alignment, execution and performance. Ultimately, you’ll walk away with the ability to ask the right strategic questions in each business situation you face moving forward, resulting in better strategic decisions and a healthier overall business.

Respected Providers of Strategic Planning and Management Solutions

LBL Strategies is run by pioneering leaders of university-based certification training in strategic management for business professionals. We currently work in affiliation with George Washington University’s Center for Excellence in Public Leadership, part of the College of Professional Studies and the Baldrige Foundation Institute for Performance Excellence. LBL Strategies is a Registered Education Provider of International Association for Strategy Professionals (IASP).